Jeff, I have had a number of things happen to me real sudden-like so if I was to swear -FOR SURE- that Bush hadn't healed suddenly -even UNAIDED- it would make me one whopper hypocrite. I remember back in 1992/1993. My chest inside had developed "adhesions" which was bands of new tissue, crossed back & forth. Much like Pelvic Inflammatory Disease women get in their female area okay. My chest hit the ground so hard that I developed it as a result. The bands of tissue began pulling my spine, twisting it. My organs (heart, lungs, etc.) were affected too and they were all being pulled out of proper place.

Then one day, I stopped in a doorway, reached up with both hands and pulled down. Something REALLY BIG let go. Now this wasn't an unaided miracle as I had been drinking Wheat Germ Oil which had lubed up my insides & joints. It also works great to ease the dry joints of ARTHRITIS. hahahaha I've got that from genetics. So none of my terrific accidents were much help.

More recently, about 3 weeks ago after 5 years of INTENSE NUTRITION my foot suddenly decided to respond to the therapy. A thickened pad grew under my damaged foot. It happened suddenly, overnight. But it resulted from thousands of dollars from my son's paycheck mostly. Medicare didn't pay for nutrition any more than it pays for dental care.

(*BTW, these two expenses that are paying off for me -not being paid under Bush's new plans- are why I hate his Medicare plans.))

Now, yesterday Jeff I was on fire all day long. I woke up at 3:30am, turned on the computer, & you saw my posts withtimes that began around 4am or 4:30 and stretched on into last night. I took sporadic breaks but otherwise I was Lyle Alzado clearing hurdles myself. So when I pointed out that Bush was moving with the mental & physical agility of an athlete pumped up on STEROIDS why, the same COULD BE SAID OF ME. From your point of view, I may be worse than Bush!

But it was not. However since EVERYONE & THEIR BROTHER KNOWS WOODY IS BIPOLAR, you're probably all thinking I was Lyle Alzado, Bipolar Man. Wrong again. My first inventions that began having back in 1985 were at that time accompanied by the bipolar-raised biochemical rush. I'd get high & then I'd have an invention. But that was before meds & before all this nutrition.

I don't get high anymore. I sort of miss it but I've traded it in for nutrition that has taken me beyond bipolar, to a place where I no longer experience the bipolar roller coaster. Where I am, there are no more highs. Plus I'm older. The older a person gets the less body energy available to fuel the roller coaster. So I've brought the bipolar under rein by both getting healthier AND getting older. I haven't taken any Lithium since Sept. 2002, after which I gradually lost the Parkinson's palsy in my hand and arm (evidence of drug-induced brain damage to my motor control areas of my brain from Lithium) & after which I gradually recovered from the memory loss (& memory blackout I suffered in July 2002).

I've had to apply every shred of Google research results and every bit of smarts, training myself to be my own doctor because my doctors still believe 10 year old medical literature that says I can't recover from bipolar.

Bush could have recovered suddenly. It isn't impossible because I've had sudden improvements also. Where did I get the energy to go all day long yesterday? I'll tell you. Night before last a upper ribcage over my heart that's been out-of-place since my accident in 1989 suddenly decided to shift back into proper position. It has been distressing me for many years... and it let go. It had been depressing my heart and depressing my lung function. I've also had ongoing but occasional instances where my spine has pressed down on the nerves where they branch off the main trunk nerve running down the middle of the spinal column. The worst occasion of that has affected my breathing. You see, I had SEVERE SLEEP APNEA as recently as 3 years ago.

Which is another thing the medical literature says has little hope of cure. But yet it seems I have. However, there's parts of bipolar I may never overcome but they're the harmless parts. The tendency to write a lot may be with me til the day I die. But I know of no other way to communicate how I've healed the incurable through determined applied nutrition.

NUTRITION THAT MEDICARE DOES NOT PAY FOR JEFF, THE ACHILLES HEEL OF OUR ENTIRE HEALTHCARE & MEDICARE SYSTEM > NOTHING FOR NUTRITION, NOTHING.

Anyway, the sudden move two nights ago released my heart & lung from the feeling I had someone STANDING ON MY CHEST, and that was where all the energy came from that I drew upon yesterday, not a bipolar swing. Over the years I've seen Bush exhibit signs of stuff I've had going on with me, specifically the way he was walking. I knew that he was on meds of some kind by the way he was walking. In 2002 I noted that I was reaching with my foot as I walked, and I saw that with Bush. Then he wrecked on a bike?! His motor control was COLLAPSING at that point.

In my opinion his neurons were in crisis. Either a circulatory (perhaps cholesterol buildup) was interfering with his biochemical/electrical thought, early onset Alzheimer's (caused by meds), or an overdosing of psychoactive meds (Lithium, Xanax, Zoloft, Wellbutrin & others).

Jeff, what did I have in common with President Bush that would cause both of us to be experiencing the same crisis of brain health? Normal aging? Maybe, except that my accidents had advanced my age beyond chronological. Uhm, how about induced Alzheimer's-like symptoms from having a buttload of psychotropic meds shoved at us by our ALCHEMIST-based doctors?

WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN FOR JEFF, SHAKEN DOWN?! Well, if Bush was in MY SHAPE this country has been in terrible shape. A person going thru these meds is incredibly influenceable. Mentally MALLEABLE. This gives whoever is nearby a magified ability to tell that person what to do. In my case, I've been talked out of thousands of dollars, $600 alone from a telephone scam that found me in 2001. Mentally I was ELDERLY. If Bush was going through some level of that, Karl Rove was the leader of this country.

And that ain't no hooley. But now we see a new improved Bush. When I saw the transformation I had red flags going up over Okinawa here. Then I saw everyone lioned up in droves clapping this NEW CREATURE, the new George Bush.

Which could be real (nutrition & he got new doctors) or Memorex (a long, staged scam). Since no one, not Senators nor citizenry, has any right of access to the President's personal health records, we have little way of knowing who is really calling the shots at the White House. All we know is who signs the name on th dotted line. We're presently more dumb & ignorant than the proverbial doorknob, which is to say that the majority of doorknobs knows more than the voter or non-voter, which is also to say we're all now doorknobs.

hehehehe, yet not funny, not funny at all.

There's a way out of this morass from hell. Everything the President does while in office should no longer be considered his & his doctor's exclusive personal domain. Every drug and therapy a President receives should be an OPEN BOOK, much like what he is now doing to our communications & telephones being under Government Surveillance, that's what we on this side of the equation should be reciprocated back with from the White House.

And not sitting here wondering if a President with a steroid-shaking brain & arm is sitting in control of the largest nuclear armed forces in the History of the World.

If the President can wiretap US, we should be wiretapping HIM. If our employers can go through OUR PERSONAL HEALTH RECORDS, we should see through theirs. If the local governments & the White House can set up surveillance cameras in our lives & on the highway, we should have videocams set up in ALL White House hallways.

And finally, Jeff, our President should have an airplane-style black box strapped to him and we should -or a select group should- HEAR EVERY THING HE SAYS, SEE EVERY WHERE HE SEES, HEAR EVERY WHISPER HE UTTERS TO ANYONE & EVERYONE FROM THE DAY HE TAKES OATH OF OFFICE TIL THE DAY HE STEPS DOWN.

And that's my word. Otherwise Jeff? hahaha We're a Nation full of of ignorant know nothing doorknobs who doesn't even know what's in the President's medicine cabinet or flowing through his bloodstream.

Had these systems been in place already, we could have saved untold MILLIONS of dollars on the Bill Clinton/Monica Lewinsky scandal alone. Until we fix the White House engine we'll keep sputtering along inefficiently.

If I still haven't answered your issues, try me again. I just got up & I know I've given you both less & more than you ask for. Another one of those harmless bipolar hangerons. But these little hang on issues aren't nearly as bad for me as President Bush dedicating YOUR BILLIONS OF TAX DOLLARS INTO EXPENSIVE CAR ENGINES/SYSTEMS WHILE IGNORING WHAT I HAVE. However, if your tax dollars are paying for it then you should be looking at a new car coming to a showroom near you with a pricetag of $15,000, not $40,000.00

We know that turkey, & it doesn't fly any more than a penguin. You're going to pay twice the base price for the next generation of automobiles. Then you're going to pay another way, from the heavy vehicles/small tire combo that's going to shred the nation's highway road surface into airborne DUST or waterborn asphalt dust pollution runoff into the groundwater which as you should know is ALREADY CRITICALLY POLLUTED.

Then you're going to pay a 4th way. As all this new pollution begins giving even more people chronic lung disease (EMPHYSEMA ON STEROIDS PLUS INCREASED ASTHMA), about the time the nation's hospitals begins swelling with more patients (you) your new car will be dropping off the new car warranty... and that's when the U-know-what really sets fire to Jeff's house.

You will be ill, the warranty off your aging car, and you're going to be between a rock & a hard place because we can barely GUESS at the repair costs on a TWO-ENGINE CAR nor the rate at which its burdened suspension system will fail ($). So Jeff, as I said before, excuse me for not gushing & giddy clapping over the new George Bush. You and the rest of us doorknobs are about to find out just how deep a well can get.

While Bush & Cheney will be sipping tea in Texas, having medical specialists coming to their home like Americans had once... about the ONLY WAY you stand a snowball's chance of improving this scenario is if the Fair Tax passes. Otherwise in about 8-10 years it looks like we doorknobs will melt down financially like the old witch in the Wizard of Oz. Most of us tee total ignorant of what caused it to happen. Much like today we'll clutch a Bible, a rosary, or a Bible & a rosary. The rest of us will raise a clenched fist heavenward and blame God, swearing we'll never ever worship Him because he left us to this "Fate".

I believe in God, have all my life. I also believe "He" gave us hands to steer this boat. And He gave me a brain so wonderfully made I survived numerous poisonings and overdosing damages. After saving me from drownings, concussions, & a few doctors trying to not treat me (and doing a great job), I've been allowed to find these marvelous engines that are NOT heavy, do NOT pollute, and would NOT cost $40,000.00 .

So Jeff, we doorknobs are facing either a terrible cattle chute experience to even MORE financial slaughters, or we can reroute ourselves and choose a better chute. A better "Fate".
A better Fate than the one shoved at us yesterday. (February 02/2006)
